

HAYWOOD WANTED STEUNENBERG SHOT

Declared He Was Monster and Tyrant and Should Be Killed.

BIG EVIDENCE
COMING LATER

Bitter Articles in Miners' Magazine Read to Jury Over Protest of Defense—Confirming Details of Orchard's Confession—Nearing the End.

BOISE, IDAHO, June 20.—Unless there should be unforeseen delay in securing a few final pieces of evidence, the State will tomorrow close its case against William D. Haywood, who is charged with the murder of Frank Steunenberg. This announcement was made today by Senator Borah, of the prosecution. When Clarence Darrow, of the defense, took up the discussion of the arrangement of time, he made it very clear that directly the State closed, he and his associates would move the court for an instruction directing a verdict of acquittal. It is now anticipated that the State will close by noon; that the afternoon session will be devoted to argument of the expected motion of the defense, and if the court rules adversely on the motion, the opening statement in behalf of Haywood will be made by Mr. Darrow Saturday.

The prosecution succeeded today in again showing a direct connection between the store of General Pettibone in Denver and Harry Orchard at work on the Bradley crime in San Francisco, and promised to make the connection with Pettibone personally by handwriting experts who will be called tomorrow. Original records of the Pacific Postal Telegraph Company were produced, showing that in September and October, 1904, remittances of $97.50 and $48, respectively, were made, the first by "J. Wolf" and the second by "P. Bone," from 1725 Stout Street, Denver, the address of Pettibone's store, to H. Green, in care of Peter L. Huff, at 211 Taylor Street, San Francisco.

Haywood Said Kill Governor. W. V. McCartney was cashier of the Denver office of the Postal Telegraph Company in the fall of 1904; came here from Cheyenne to identify and explain the records that showed the remittances. The exhibits included both the application forms and telegrams of instruction ordering the payment of the money at San Francisco. "J. Wolf" and "P. Bone" both waived the identification of "H. Green" at San Francisco, and it is claimed that the handwriting in both instances is the same, and that it is the same as in the letter Pettibone wrote to the Mutual Life Insurance Company when Harry Orchard joined that corporation as an agent.

The State also showed that while at Silver City, Idaho, in 1898, Haywood declared that Steunenberg was a tyrant and a monster, who should be exterminated, and by James Kirwan, acting secretary-treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners, that Jack Sappington and Marion Moore were members of the executive board of the Federation in 1905 and that control of all expenditures made by the organization was vested in the president and secretary-treasurer.

All-Day Reading Session. For the rest it was a day of reading, with Senator Borah as first reader. Judge Wood admitted that many of the strongly worded articles of the Miners' Magazine, in which Frank Steunenberg was bitterly denounced, and as one after another they were read in the State House to the jury. These were admitted to be the animus of the federation officials against Steunenberg, and showing animus against Justices Goddard and Gabbert, of the Supreme Court of Colorado, whom Harry Orchard swore he tried many times to kill.

The State introduced in evidence the decision of those judges on the Colorado eight-hour law and the habeas corpus applications of Charles H. Moyer.

The defense insists that Borah read every word in both decisions and the first, which took forty-five minutes to go over, was read before the noon recess and cleared the court of all save those whose duty required them to stay. The other was read with like effect on the afternoon session. Darrow called for the dissenting opinion in the Moyer case as a matter of fairness, and demanded that Borah read that also. Judge Wood took pity on the weary reader, however, and said that if the defense wanted the dissenting opinion it must designate one of its counsel to read it. Mr. Darrow was selected as reader, but he will not be heard until tomorrow.

Defense Objected Always. To practically every piece of evidence offered during the day the defense first offered objection, and then made a motion to strike out, and lastly took an exception. To all evidence connected with the general conspiracy alleged by the defense, the objections of the defense included the proposition that the acts shown were not binding on the defendant, and that they were not connected with the Steunenberg murder, and there was frequent objection to the evidence offered to corroborate the testimony of Harry Orchard, an alleged accomplice, in the manner provided by the statute.

Money Sent by Haywood. It was stated to-night that the prosecution had received a telegram from Denver showing that the date on the draft for $100 sent by William D. Haywood to Jack Sappington was December 21, 1905. Orchard testified that when Sappington left Caldwell after his arrest, and which he said was written by George Pettibone, one of the co-defendants informed him of the co-defendants' plan to send a letter to "Jack" on December 11, 1905, and that he should have received it. The State produced the Victims.

ATLANTA, GA., June 20.—A special from Jasper, Fla., says W. W. Barton, a carpenter, shot and almost instantly killed his wife, three children and himself at his home there last night. One victim, a child five years of age, survived long enough to tell that Barton did the killing. The shots were heard about 10 o'clock, but no attention was paid to the matter until early today, when neighbors discovered Barton's body lying on the front porch, and that of his wife on the back porch. The children were found in a bedroom, the pistol having been held close to the mouth in each instance, and the faces were powder marked.

Unhappy domestic relations were believed to have been responsible for the crime. Barton left home Tuesday, and did not return until late Wednesday evening, when he found the doors nailed against him. He battered them down and began his work of destruction.

NEW YORK, June 20.—John D. Rockefeller's automobile, in which Mr. Rockefeller was being rather hurriedly driven to his country home today, was stopped by a constable at Elms Ford and the chauffeur was subsequently fined $25 for exceeding the speed limit. Mr. Rockefeller paid the fine.

Mr. Rockefeller was on his way from this city to Pocantico Hills when the car was halted. According to the constable, the machine was making thirty miles an hour when he caught its speed over a measured course. Mr. Rockefeller explained that he was in a hurry to get home and the officer consented to accompany him to Pocantico Hills. There Mr. Rockefeller communicated by phone with Justice Seth Bird, at Tarrytown, admitted that the constable was probably right in his speed calculation and arranged to pay the chauffeur's fine.

Swanson.

This is what Governor Swanson said last night to a Times-Dispatch news writer when asked why he had not taken action regarding the outrages perpetrated at Pine Beach last Sunday night, when an officer and three men of the Seventy-eighth Regiment of Virginia Volunteers were improperly arrested, and an innocent bystander, Sergeant Kainer, of Staunton, was clubbed and nearly killed by a special policeman from Illinois by the name of Stevenson.

BROTHERS AGAIN ON OLD BATTLEFIELD

Soldiers of Lee and Grant
Meet Around Gowan Monument.

PETERSBURG IN [HOLIDAY ATTIRE

Streets Gaily Decorated, and Citizens Turn Out as One Man to Welcome Governors of Pennsylvania and Virginia and Other Visitors.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] PETERSBURG, VA., June 20.—Petersburg did herself proud to-day when she opened her gates to the State of Pennsylvania and gave a royal reception to Governor Stuart, of the Keystone State, and the survivors of the Forty-eighth Regiment of Pennsylvania Volunteers, who journeyed to the battlefield, near the Crater, to erect a monument to Colonel Gowan and the men of the regiment who fell before Petersburg.

Salutes of seventeen guns were fired in honor of Governor Stuart, of Pennsylvania, and Governor Swanson, of Virginia, who, with his staff, took part in the interesting ceremonies. Flags and colors decorated the streets; the Confederate veterans of the city marched with the Union soldiers, and an immense throng lined the streets and roads along which the parade moved, cheering and applauding their enemies of long ago.

It was a sight long to be remembered and one which told the story that the people of the South bear no malice and have in their hearts only admiration of brave deeds and duty well done. In the line of march were the crack military organization of Petersburg, the "Greys," under command of Captain Benjamin Harrison and General Stith Bolling, and the Virginia Division of United Confederate Veterans, in Confederate uniform, rode at the head of the procession, followed by the splendid Camp of A. P. Hill, Confederate Veterans, wearing the gray.

Exercises at Monument. At the monument a vast crowd gathered, listened to speeches made by General Bolling, of Virginia, General Stuart, of Pennsylvania; Colonel Daniel Nagle, of Pennsylvania; Governor Stuart, of Pennsylvania; Governor Swanson, of Virginia, and Professor S. A. Atholow, of Pennsylvania, cheered to the echo allusions to the feats of valor on both sides of the struggle, and gave the Pennsylvanians a welcome as warm as they would have received in Philadelphia or Harrisburg.

A pleasing incident of the unveiling was the presence of Mrs. Octavia Mahone McGill, a daughter of General William Mahone, who, with Miss Bessie B. Reid, pulled the cord which removed the American flags from around the splendid bronze figure and played a part in honoring the memory of a brave soldier who had fought against her father.

After the ceremonies at the unveiling, two markers were placed near the Crater, a luncheon was served at the home of Colonel George Carrington, and receptions were held by Mrs. Mahone and the Elks' Club in honor of the visitors.

Saluted on Arrival. The arrival of Governor Stuart, accompanied by his staff and more than 200 Pennsylvania veterans, on a special train early this morning, was announced to the city by the explosion of bombs at the Union Depot, and at a later hour the distinguished visitors were escorted to the Stratford Hotel by A. P. Hill Camp of Confederate Veterans and the Petersburg Greys. Soon the booming bombs heralded the coming of Governor Swanson, who reached here at 9:30, accompanied by his staff, and entering a carriage with Congressman F. R. Lassiter, was driven at once to the Stratford Hotel amid the hearty cheers of crowds which lined the gaily decorated streets. The parade moved from the Stratford about 10:15, headed by General Stith Bolling as chief marshal, Major A. R. Moody, Adjutant E. Howie, of the Second Battalion and Seventy-second Regiment. A staff of aids, including William Mahone, son of the famous Confederate leader; E. W. Ritchie, George B. Whitmore, J. M. Newcomb and other well-known citizens.

With the bands playing "Dixie," "Maryland, My Maryland," and other war-time music of both the South and North, the column marched up Sycamore amid enthusiastic cheers, the famous Royal Artillery band, introduced by Major Frank R. Leib, chairman of the monument committee of the Forty-eighth Pennsylvania Regiment, and after music by the Petersburg Band, introduced by Roy A. Long, chaplain of the Forty-eighth, who opened the exercises with a beautiful prayer. General Bolling delivered an address, welcoming the Union veterans to Virginia, which was punctuated by ap-

At Wythe Street the marchers boarded street cars, which conveyed them to the Blairford terminus of the line, where additional carriages and other vehicles were in readiness for the drive to Fort Mahone, about a mile and a half distant. Here the handsome monument, veiled with the United States flag, and the speakers' stand was surrounded by a cheering throng, which gave a hearty greeting to Major Frank R. Leib, chairman of the monument committee of the Forty-eighth Pennsylvania, who presided as master of ceremonies, and after music by the Petersburg Band, introduced by Roy A. Long, chaplain of the Forty-eighth, who opened the exercises with a beautiful prayer. General Bolling delivered an address, welcoming the Union veterans to Virginia, which was punctuated by ap-
